

While there are ongoing research activities on this risk, the Human Research Program currently has no plans to solicit for or pursue any new research projects in this area. If this plan changes, a strategy chart will be developed and posted to this location.